An indulgent self-drive journey

Hawke's Bay winery suggestions...

Church Road Winery

With a history of over 100 years of winemaking, Church Road is one of New Zealand's oldest wineries. Learn about the history of winemaking throughout the ages at the Church Road Wine Museum. Daily tours take approximately an hour, concluding with a tasting of current vintage wines.

Ngatarawa

Founder Alwyn Corban is the fourth generation of New Zealand's first family of wine, carrying on the legacy of Assid Abraham Corban, who brought a 300-year-old tradition of winemaking to New Zealand when he migrated here from Lebanon. Today, Ngatarawa produces several brands, among them is Farmgate – each wine profiles a unique Hawke's Bay food producer and tells their story. Taste them at the cellar door, which operates out of historic racing stables.

Mission Estate Winery

Mission Estate is regarded by many as the birthplace of New Zealand wine, with its founders building the first winery in Hawke's Bay in 1851. Housed in a historic seminary building, for those interested in history, the twice daily historic walk is a must. Lunch or dinner can be enjoyed seven days at the Mission Restaurant.
